Michael is an Executive Director of Savills Commercial and National Head of Building & Building Project Consultancy. He is a Chartered Project Management Surveyor and has been with the Savills group since 1989.

He has worked for clients across both the public and private sector.

Michael's responsibilities cover project management, and professional building surveying services. He leads a large team of over 60 qualified surveyors. The department acts for developers, landlords and occupiers across a wide workload that covers new development, refurbishment and fit out.

In recent years he has been instrumental in establishing specialist teams with in depth knowledge of areas of expertise. Project teams focus on offices, retail and industrial. The Industrial team has advised on some of the largest schemes for a wide range of leading developers and occupiers.

The professional teams include leading players who concentrate on Dilapidations, Rights of Light, Service Charges, Party Walls and Due Diligence. The culture Michael has instilled is aimed at supporting clients to identify additional value wherever practicable and to identify, analyse and manage out risk.

Michael has over 27 years of professional and project experience operating across business space, retail, leisure, industrial and distribution sectors as well as residential.

He qualified as Chartered Building Surveyor in 1978.
